

Grandma's Q&A

Lukes's question: Are you a great grandma?

Answer: I'm not only a great grandma, I'm a great great grandma.

Henry's question: How many pieces are in your puzzle that you are working on right now?

Answer: We are putting a puzzle together and it has 4000 pieces. And we have to take it to the Red Balloon Toy Store, and it is going to be connected to a puzzle that has 40 thousand pieces.

Owen's Question: Who was your favorite President and why?

Answer: My favorite president was probably Abraham Lincon, because he was a good man and he prayed to Heavenly Father about the country and he just was the best.

Rafe's Question: Would you dislike someone if they swore?

Answer: You know what, my dad was a cusser. It's their problem not mine. All I have to do is love them. She later added that if her child said a bad word then it was her problem and she would do something about it.

James' Question: What is that bell on your wall?

Answer: When our children were growing up, we had a big bell on the wall that came from a ship. What we would do is, I would ring the bell before breakfast and that meant you had 5 minutes to get ready and get downstairs and the second bell meant you should be ready for prayer. We would kneel and pray twice a day, morning and evening. The big ship's bell broke, so we replaced it with that small bell.

Jonny's question: If you are 91, you lived through WWII, right?

Answer: Absolutely, I remember President Roosevelt saying over the Radio, Pearl harbor has been bombed. During the war there were certain things that were hard to get, like shoes. They would give us stamps to get shoes and we could maybe get one pair of shoes per year. They needed rubber for tires during the war, so anything made of rubber you didn't see very much during the war like rubber balls. Also, they rationed sugar and you had to use your stamps to get sugar.

Question: Are you happy and why do you think you have lived so long?

Answer: I am happy every single day!! I know that Heavenly Father is watching over me and that the Holy Ghost is in my home. My family loves me and my children are kind to me. There isn't one person that I dislike. I don't judge people and I don't get mad, so I don't go around upset and I eat healthy.
